Crops and Soils Day To Be Held July 13

Crops and Soils Day, scheduled for Tuesday, July 13, at the Northwest School and Station, will be of special interest to Red River Valley farmers this year. New varieties of disease-resistant crops growing on the experimental plots and increase fields will be shown in comparison with the older recommended crop varieties.

The program for the day starts at 10:30 A. M. with the annual business meeting of the Red River Valley Crops and Soils Association in the school library. A tour of the livestock and poultry yards is scheduled for 11:00 A. M. with O. M. Kiser and A. M. Pilkey, in charge.

Crop experts from University Farm, St. Paul, headed by Dean and Director C. H. Bailey and Vice-director F. R. Immer will take part on the program which starts at 1:30 P. M. Dr. H. K. Hayes, noted small grain and corn breeder and chief of the Division of Agronomy and Plant Genetics, will be present to discuss "Recent Developments in the Production of New Strains of Forage Crops." Plant disease specialist, Carl J. Eide, and J. J. Christensen will give latest information on disease control in potatoes and cereal crops.

R. S. Dunham, station agronomist, will conduct the tour of inspection through the crops and forage plots at the Northwest Experiment Station. J. H. Wampole, horticulturist, will lead the tour through the potato plots.

New crops and items of interest to be seen on the tour of experimental plots include:

FLAX variety test with such new varieties as Crystal, Koto, and Victory.

BARLEY—New Minnesota hybrids of early strains with stiff straw, high bushel weight, and rust resistant.

WHEAT—Small plots and increase field of New Thatcher which will replace the Thatcher variety. Two new macaroni wheats, Carlton and Stewart, are in small increase plots this year.

OATS—New smut and crown rust resistant varieties. Tama and Vicland are grown in comparison with older recommended varieties.

CORN—All of the leading early recommended corn hybrids will be found in the corn variety tests.

SOYBEANS—The earliest varieties of soybeans, Kabbot, Pagoda, and Minsoy, will be found in the 1/40 Acre plots.

Strain tests of grasses include desirable strains of brome grass, meadow fescue, crested wheat, Timothy, and orchard grass.

Ten pasture grass combinations, alfalfa and sweet clover variety trials, will be of interest to both crops and livestock men.

A new crops test of interest to farmers this year is the hemp variety, seeding and seed treatment test, in which Kentucky and Chilean hems are grown in comparison.

New varieties of potatoes and comprehensive spraying and seed treatment tests will be shown on the tour of potato plots.

666 Attend 4-H Camp

The 32nd annual 4-H Club Camp at the Northwest School of Agriculture, Crookston, closed on Wednesday, June 9, with an enrollment of 666 club members. Fourteen Northwestern Minnesota counties were represented at the camp with Kittson county taking top honors for the largest enrollment with 109 club members present. Other counties with large enrollment were West Polk, Pennington, Red Lake, and Norman. 4-H club members from Ottertail county came the greatest distance.

Class instruction in all food and feed production projects was given daily to all club members. H. A. Pflughoef, district 4-H club agent, served as camp leader. Members of staff of the Northwest School and specialists from the Agricultural Extension Division, University Farm, St. Paul, made up the faculty for the camp. County club agents from all counties served as county leaders for their respective county groups. Special speakers at the camp assemblies included A. J. Kittleson, state 4-H club leader, St. Paul; W. J. Breckenridge, curator of the Museum of Natural History, University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; and Superintendent T. M. McCall of the Northwest School. Special emphasis was also placed on instruction in first-aid, safety, and conservation through the use of lectures and motion picture films.

The recreational program was organized to permit full participation of all club members in swimming, basketball and open-air games. Mr. A. O. Naplin of the Northwest School staff was in general charge of the athletic program. Miss Avonelle Gregoire of Bemidji and Francis Eckert of Crookston assisted with the recreational program.

Contest Winners Announced

The winners in the 4-H "better groomed" contest were awarded War Saving stamps and ribbons at the final assembly held on Wednesday afternoon. War stamps and merchandise prizes were provided by Lever Brothers Company. The prizes were awarded by Miss Amy Wessel, club agent of University Farm, St. Paul. The winners were as follows (by counties): BECKER COUNTY (15 years and under) BLUE RIBBON: Harriet Overboe, Audubon; KITTSON COUNTY—Charles Lindberg, Kennedy. WEST POLK COUNTY—Osmund Moe, Fisher. ROSEAU COUNTY—Edwin Mollstrom, Salol. CLAY COUNTY—Darlene Kosen, Felton. ARLAN STRANGELAND, Moorhead. MAH-NOMEN COUNTY—Harold Kjos, Mah-nomen. RED LAKE COUNTY—Dwight Lindholm, Red Lake Falls. EAST

Alumni Reunion Postponed

The Northwest School Alumni Reunion, traditionally held on the last Saturday of June, has been postponed until fall. In keeping with the recommendation of the Office of Defense Transportation rulings, it has been decided to postpone the alumni reunion until there is an easing in the transportation situation.

Many alumni have asked that the reunion and annual business meeting of the Association be held in conjunction with the Homecoming program in October.

Definite announcement of Homecoming plans will be made later in the summer as soon as the football schedule for the school year is complete.

Rain Hampers Farm Work

Wet and cloudy weather over the Red River Valley counties has delayed seeding of late crops and seriously retarded cultivation of crops. Counties suffering the greatest set-back in seeding due to heavy rains and floods include Lake of the Woods, Roseau, and eastern parts of Kittson, Marshall and Pennington counties. A flash flood in the headwaters region of the Wild Rice river in Mahnomen county during the first week in June caused considerable flood damage to property and crops in central Norman county. The more rolling land in the southern and southeastern parts of the Red River Valley has suffered less crop damage from water

Large Enrollment in Home Project Work

The field and laboratory work of the students of the Northwest School of Agriculture has been transferred to the homes and farms of the students during the summer months, according to Superintendent T. M. McCall. More than three hundred students in the Red River Valley counties are applying lessons learned in the classroom and acquiring new knowledge for school credit on a score of projects for girls and twenty-seven projects for boys.

Major emphasis was placed this year on food production and efficiency projects for boys. Forty boys are growing foundation seed plots of new and approved varieties of grains while others are growing certified seed potatoes, corn, and garden crops. In livestock work, baby beef, sheep, pork and dairy herd management projects are most popular. A total of thirty-seven students are keeping weather records while others are keeping records of performance and cost of tractors and combines. All phases of farm and home life are covered in the summer work the students are doing.

Project supervisors from the school visit the student and check the progress of work during the summer.

New Scholarships Offered For 1943-44 School Year

From eight to ten new scholarships, valued at fifty dollars each, will be offered students at the Northwest School for the school year beginning on October 4. The scholarships are made possible through funds set aside by the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York. The scholarships will be made available to one boy and one girl in each of four Red River Valley agency districts of the company.

The scholarship nominees are to be recommended to the Northwest School Scholarship Committee by a committee selected in each county from leaders in county agent and 4-H club work. Rules to be observed in the selection of the scholarship winners are now being formulated so that recipients of scholarships can attend school this fall.

Boys and girls to be eligible for scholarships must show qualities for leadership and plan to continue in agriculture and homemaking; they must also be in need of assistance to continue their educational training.

The Northwest School is fortunate in securing this fine cooperation in making an additional year of special training available to Red River Valley boys and girls. The new scholarships from the Mutual Life Insurance Company, together with five and one-half scholarships again provided from the Sears, Roebuck and Company fund, will make a total of thirteen to fifteen scholarships at fifty dollars each available to new Northwest School students for 1943-44.

than the more level areas. The western half of Kittson county in mid-June appeared to be the most favored spot for crops in the Red River Valley area.

R. S. Dunham, weather observer for the Northwest School and Station, reported only five clear days during the month of May with a total rainfall of 3.11 inches, 0.39 inches over the ten-year average. Intermittent showers in June totalled 2.42 inches of rainfall by June 17 which is slightly above the forty-year average for that period.

With a serious feed shortage confronting the livestock industry, farmers are urged to seed every available acre to crops which will produce seed or forage. Seed crops are needed in particular and such crops as the large seeded millets and buckwheat may still be planted with good chances of success.

Early seeded crops, alfalfa, sweet clover pastures and meadows have made excellent growth with good crop prospects. Weather conditions are ideal for the development of plant diseases such as flax rust, leaf and stem rust of wheat. Growers with crops resistant or immune to the common plant diseases will apparently have good crop insurance this year.

Potato dealers, warehouse men, and farmers are being urged to destroy all potato dumps by burying or covering all piles of cull potatoes. Potato plants

Major Wm. Johnson In Asia

Major William E. Johnson, a graduate of the Northwest School in 1923, is rendering valuable service to the armed forces in Asia. He is a former captain of the National Guard Company at Duluth, Minnesota. The following news item regarding Major Johnson's work, taken from the "Duluth News Tribune", will be of interest to Northwest School Alumni:

"Thousands of miles away in Oran, Algeria, North Africa, a Duluth farmer is helping to decide how much should be paid to the aggrieved parties citizens whose persons or property have been damaged by American armed forces. He is Major William Johnson, who left his 200-acre farm six miles outside of Duluth to serve with the army claims commission which was set up two weeks after the landing of American forces in Algeria last November.

According to a report received here, the commission took Johnson along "in order to be able to handle such cases intelligently."

There are twelve officers and thirteen enlisted men in the Oran claims section. They handled 165 cases in the first two weeks and paid off the first complainant three days after arriving. Most of the claims are minor ones. Many are for damage to crops where soldiers marched across fields or camped for the night."

growing on potato dumps become infected with the late blight of the potato and become centers of infection which the disease may spread over large areas. While no late blight on potatoes is reported in the Red River Valley area, growers are warned to keep potato plants covered with copper sprays to prevent the disease from getting started.

New insects and diseases are constantly appearing which means that crop and livestock producers must be ever vigilant in detecting pests so that prompt control measures can be applied.
