RED RIVER VALLEY WINTER SHOWS February 22-26

Prospects are excellent for a successful 44th annual Red River Valley Winter Shows and Northwest School Farmers' Week, according to T. M. McCall, president of the Winter Shows Board of Managers. Educational meetings sponsored by the University and organizations cooperating with the shows have been arranged for each day of the show, Monday through Thursday. The combined meetings and shows have been attracting from 15,000 to 17,000 persons annually.

The livestock show with herds and flocks from the leading livestock breeders of the Red River Valley area, and the crops and poultry shows acquaint the farmer and townsman with the latest developments in production of livestock, poultry, and crops.

The general schedule of events for the week includes: Monday, February 22—livestock and crops judging contests; Soil Conservation Day; Tuesday, February 23—Crops Day (all day program); Garden Club Day; junior livestock Futurity Day; open class livestock judging; Wednesday, February 24—Livestock Day, Poultry Day, open class livestock judging, 4-H Club Day, rural school spelling contest, stockmen's Dutch lunch; Thursday, February 25—Potato and Sugar Beet Day, Valley Farmers and Homemakers banquet, sale of bred gilts and ewes; Friday, February 26—Cattle Sale Day. Forty-five head of bred ewes and eighty head of bred gilts from the leading breeds of sheep and swine will be sold on February 25; 100 head of purebred cattle, both bulls and cows, of the leading beef and dairy breeds will be sold on February 26.

For the evening meetings during the week, Monday is designated as community night and judging team banquet night. The shows will be open until 9:00 P.M. to permit local people to see the show. The Tuesday evening, Feb. 23, speaker will be Thor Gjesdal, principal director of the United Nations, Department of Public Information, who will speak on "The United Nations." For Wednesday evening, negotiations are underway for a spokesman from the U. S. Department of Agriculture. On Thursday evening, T. H. Fenske, assistant dean, and A. A. Dowell, director of resident instruction and assistant dean, Institute of Agriculture, University of Minnesota, St. Paul, will be joint speakers on the program. Illustrated talks will be given on agricultural and economic conditions in the Scandinavian countries by T. H. Fenske, and in India by A. A. Dowell.

For the women's meetings, Garden Club Day will be held on Tuesday, February 22. On Thursday, February 25, Mrs. A. A. Dowell of St. Paul will speak on "Some Observations From a Trip Through Western and Southern Europe."

Music features of the Winter Shows will be a Barber Shop Quartet Contest on Tuesday evening, a concert by the Crookston Municipal Band on Wednesday evening, and a program by the re-activated Northwest Singers (a group of 90 male voices from men's choruses in the Red River Valley area) on Thursday evening.

A full week of activity has been planned for the 4-H club members starting with their judging teams and radio speaking contest on Monday; Futurity Day on Tuesday; and 4-H club demonstrations and program on Wednesday.

The evening and men's day programs will be held in the Crookston High School auditorium; the women's meetings will be held in the First Methodist Church.

Copies of the complete program will be available shortly after February 1. Copies may be secured by writing Winter Shows, Northwest School and Experiment Station, Crookston, Minnesota.

Junior Class Play To Be Given February 18

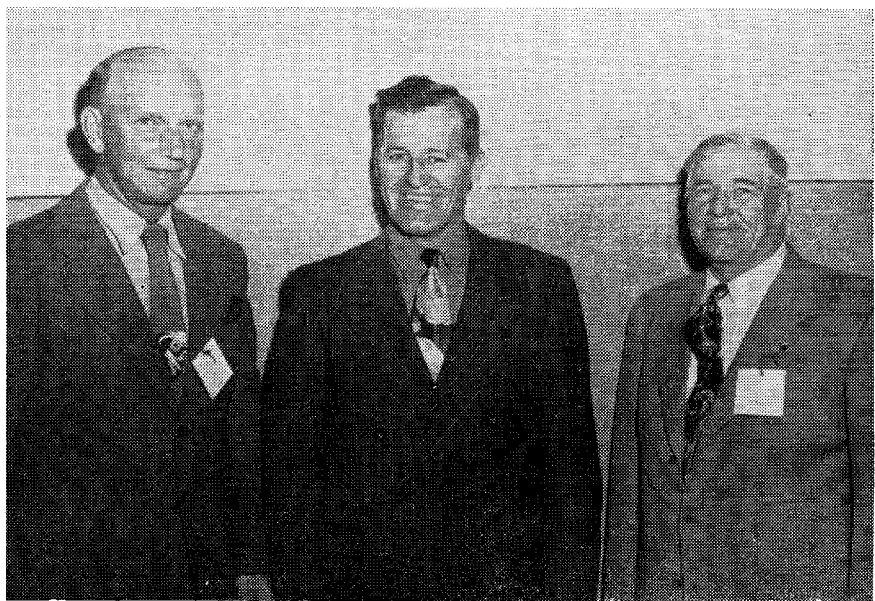

The Junior class of the Northwest School has selected "Cheaper By the Dozen" for their class play to be given at the school on Thursday, February 18. This play is dramatized by Perry Clark and produced by the Dramatic Publishing Company. Mrs. Alice Ittner, of the English faculty, is directing the play.

A large cast of characters is needed for the three-act comedy. Members of the cast are: Willis Finifrock, Barnum; Donna Miller, Crookston; Marilyn Balstad, Fosston; Harlene Hagen, Gatzke; Carol Soltis, Angus; Howard Duncan, Cando, North Dakota; Henry Landin, Warroad; Jean Stromstad, Lockhart; George Torkelson, Red Lake Falls; James Olson, Reynolds, North Dakota; Willard Loing, Reynolds, North Dakota; Donald Wold, Badger; Marlys Love, Euclid; Henry Hettwer, Mahnommen; Charles Kramer, Peoria, Illinois; Barbara Kagg, Viking. WEATHER SUMMARY FOR 1953

O. C. SOINE

Mild, open winter months with above normal temperatures and slightly cooler summer months featured the weather for 1953 in this general area, according to weather records maintained by the Northwest School and Experiment Station, Crookston. The mean temperature for the year was 2.2 degrees above the long-time average of 39.47 degrees. This was the second consecutive year with above-average temperatures. The year 1952 was 1.8 degrees above normal.

A month by month comparison of the mean temperature shows that seven were above the average and five were below. February showed greatest variation and was 7 degrees warmer than usual. The three spring months of April, May and June were slightly cooler than usual.

The extremes in temperature were not as wide as in previous years. The highest temperature of 95 degrees was recorded on August 27 while the low of -25 degrees occurred December 30.

The precipitation was fairly well distributed throughout the year and followed very closely the long-time pattern. The spring and summer rains came in a few large showers which resulted in dry periods between. This was most noticeable in the latter part of July and the first part of August when the late seeded small grains were filling and needed rain. The total precipitation for the year was 22.13 inches which is 1.84 inches above average.

Six of the months were above average while the remainder were below in precipitation. September, with 4.32 inches of rain, showed the greatest variation; this was 2.29 inches above normal. The three spring months of April, May and June were above normal but due to the dry subsoil condition brought about by two years of deficient moisture, this increased amount of rain was taken up by the subsoil.

The snowfall of 35.1 inches was equivalent to 3.17 inches of water and was well distributed throughout the winter months.

The frost-free period measured 143 days and was 15 days longer than usual. The last frost in the spring occurred on May 15 and the killing frost on October 6 ended the period.

The following summary gives the month by month data compared with the long-time averages:

	Snowfall Inch	Rain Inch	Total Precipitation		Mean Temperature

Basketball Team Making Progress

By H. H. LYSAKER

Even though graduation last spring took nine out of the first twelve boys on the "A" basketball squad, the team this year has won seven out of its first nine starts.

The "B" team to date, coached by C. D. Whiting, has won seven of its first eight games played.

Members of the "B" team are: David

407 Students Enrolled For Winter Term

The winter term at the Northwest School of Agriculture opened on January 4, with an enrollment of 407 students. Classes started on January 5, and the school term ends with Commencement exercises on March 25.

A full schedule of extra-curricular activities has been arranged for the winter term. Livestock, crops, and potato judging teams will compete in subcollegiate contests at the forthcoming Winter Shows. Two debating teams will compete in dual debates with West Central School early in March. Swimming, wrestling, and basketball teams round out the opportunities afforded in Conference competition. Boys' and girls' glee clubs, school band, and public speaking contests, together with other activities, give all students opportunity to take part in activities of their choice.

The large enrollment in each of the four classes is again taxing to full capacity the classroom space available. The cloakroom in the Hill building had to be transformed into a classroom to accommodate the classes; also, because of the number of sections required in each class, instructors are carrying heavy teaching loads.

Members of the staff will again be taking positions of leadership in the Northwest School Farmers' and Homemakers' Week and the Red River Valley Winter Shows. O. C. Soine serves as secretary-treasurer of the Winter Shows Board of Managers, superintendent of crops, and manager of crops judging contests. H. D. Fausch is manager of livestock judging contests; B. C. Beresford is superintendent of horti-
